Ryan sets a timer to a 12-year old laptop with a brand new solid state hard drive.
Watch how fast it starts!

Can everybody upgrade and what does it cost?

Most modern computers can accept Solid State Drives out of the box. Some computers require additional adapters or hardware, but that can be discussed further on an individual basis.

The cost is determined by how much storage you require. 95% of folks never even come close to filling up their hard drives, so we try to be conservative when it comes to purchasing an SSD, as the amount of storage is not quite up to where traditional hard drive storage sizes are currently.

*As of June 1, 2018, a 256GB SSD drive is about the cost of a 1TB traditional drive.***

In other words, 1/4 the storage space for a 16X improvement in speed. Again, for most people, choosing to sacrifice some space for a dramatic improvement in performance is a no-brainer when they couldn't possibly fill the space they had originally. For a 256GB SSD, cloning and installation into a laptop is only $150 + tax, or $125 + tax for a desktop.

Risner Group Joins RE/MAX

Please join us in welcoming Tracy Vanderwall and Risner Group as they become RE/MAX Executives!

Tracy made the decision to align with RE/MAX because she believes the technology and regional support will assist the already successful group of 20 real estate brokers and associates to grow even more. The Risner Group has served the region since 2000, guiding buyers and sellers in communities such as Demotte, Lowell, Roselawn, Rensselaer, Wheatfield and others. The group is deeply involved in their communities raising funds and volunteering for various organizations throughout the year.

Fun Ways to Stay Active Indoors this Summer

Summer allows us to enjoy many outdoor activities and time with family and friends. Barbecues, swimming, and trips to the beach make summer an exceptional time of year! For aging adults, the summer months can also be hazardous to your health. Problems like dehydration, sunburn and exasperation of pre-existing conditions are common after too much sun exposure. It's important to stay safe when the temperature rises. Staying active is very important no matter the season. On days when the summer sun is too intense for outdoor activities, moving indoors may be the best option. Here are some fun activities older adults can do to stay active and beat the heat:

1. Get your steps in and explore a museum or aquarium
2. Visit a local senior center to socialize and enjoy outings and activities
3. Take dance lessons for a fun way to stay active
4. Walk and window shop at an indoor shopping mall
5. Join a health club that offers group fitness and aquatic classes
6. Go bowling with friends or join a bowling league
7. Workout at home with weights and bands or invest in easy-to-use home gym equipment

Therapy Can Help Aging Adults Stay Active & Independent

Exercise is extremely important in managing many common symptoms of aging. Physical therapists evaluate your needs and teach you how to exercise appropriately for joint mobility, muscle strength and fitness. It can help strengthen the muscles around your joints, help you maintain bone strength, give you more energy to get through the day, help you control your weight, improve your balance and help you enhance your quality of life. Occupational therapists help older adults to safely do the things they want to do, stay active and live well despite limitations. Talk to your doctor today about the benefits of therapy!

Cool off this summer with a refreshing slice of watermelon!

At 92% water, this favorite summer snack is a great source of hydration and loaded with essential vitamins. Watermelon also contains high levels of the antioxidant lycopene, a famous cancer-fighting substance found in tomatoes.
